PRESS RELEASE

JULY 2024

Since 2021, Maison Lehmann, the French brand of tasting glasses based in Reims, has been investing in Ultralight technology, combining exceptional finesse and optimum lightness. In 2024, Lehmann went even further, improving the technicality of its machine made Ultralight glasses.

The Maison's Signatures collections, created in partnership with personalities from the world of wine and gastronomy, are made of lead-free crystal glass and subtly combine glassmaking know-how and oenological expertise. Within these collections, two production techniques stand out: handmade glass, an artisanal process; and machine made glass, an industrial process. To take its quest for excellence a step further, in 2021 Maison Lehmann developed "Ultralight" technology, making handmade and machine made glass 30% thinner and lighter.

In 2024, after two more years of R&D on the Ultralight process, Lehmann is now the first glass brand to offer Ultralight mechanical wine glasses with precise, regular quilting. Until then, this specific glass shape was only possible with handmade Ultralight.

Mastery of the Ultralight process now enables the Maison to reproduce its emblematic handmade creations in Ultralight machine made versions: for Champagne lovers, glass no. 4# in 40 cl from the Signature A.Lallement collection and the Grand Champagne # in 40 cl from the Signature P.Jamesse collection. For universal glasses, the Hommage 40 joins the Signature G.Basset collection and is suitable for all types of wine, whether red, white or sparkling.

Lehmann is also pleased to present this year its new Signature F.Thireau collection dedicated to Mixology, the creation of the handmade France carafe in honor of the 2024 Olympic Games, the renewal of its Excellence range as well as the creation of the Absolus Black 46 cl machine made glass, a black-tinted glass for lovers of blind tastings.

All new products and collections of wine glasses from the Maison are available on the e-shop: www.lehmann-sa.com

ABOUT MAISON LEHMANN

Haussmann-style moldings and oenological precision come together at the headquarters of Maison Lehmann, the French brand of tasting glasses, located in Reims, Champagne

In this setting, Lehmann designs tasting glasses with a singular identity and a predilection for marrying elegance and technique. The contemporary curves of the Maison's creations convey the expression of the world's wines and enhance tasting moments without compromise.

All of Lehmann glasses are produced in crystalline, a lead-free crystal that guarantees exceptional brilliance, transparency and sound. Driven by the desire to convey a singular tasting experience, the Maison has launched into two years of research and development to offer Ultralight technology in 2021, applied to mouth-blown and machine-blown glasses. This technique produces glasses of exceptional finesse and optimal lightness, while enabling the company to meet growing market demand for premium tasting glasses

The Lehmann brand focused on the future, it's a collective adventure, a shared passion, a desire for elegance, sharing & ideals.
